Here the Ahom Kings and nobles would spectate games like Kalar, Archery, etc.- Rang Ghar, besides standing as the royal pavilion, also contributed in spreading the games to different parts of the kingdom and its neighborhood.- As you walk inside the Rang Ghar, you will find series of arches adorned with unique sculptures. A steep staircase leads to the top from where the royal spectators could have a clear view of the various sports events. Wide ground known as the Rasaphali Pothar surrounds the Rang Ghar where earlier bull fights, wrestling and cock fights were organized. Mudraa, The Dance Club

IX

A Story Through a Twirl

On 8th December 2020, Mudraa The Dance Club had the opportunity to conduct the club day activity for grade IX students. The judges for the event were Ms. Aashrayi Ranjan and Ms. Poorvi Gupta. They had both presided over the club in the academic years 2018-19 and 2017-18 respectively. The event was not only entertaining but also very informative and socially insightful. Each team was told to present a story, with a valid social lesson, through dance and expression. And every single house truly out stood our expectations.

The first performance of the event was by Prakriti House. The topic of their story was “suicide prevention” and through many frames, they showed how two girls bullied the protagonist by passing defamatory comments and humiliating impressions. Due to the constant bullying, she is pushed to the edge and is left to feel hopeless and demoralized. But in those moments, a friend tries to make her believe that she is loved and needed by many. With this, Prakriti house has tried to spread awareness about a sensitive topic like suicide and its prevention. Moving to the next; Prakash House tried to encapsulate the discrimination faced by the female population. Issues like giving birth to a girl child and the harsh norms of an unapologetically patriarchal society were brought to light. Through the dance and powerful expressions, Prakash has definitely made an impact on the audience.

Taking a short break in the middle of the intense competition, a western performance by the members of Mudraa was displayed. And after two minutes of a wholesome contemporary and jazz performance, it was Pratigya House's turn to light the screen on fire. They chose to bring to attention the addiction of social media and how the obsession with virtual acceptance leads one astray from loved ones. With the assistance of highly advanced movements and colorful backgrounds, scenarios like loss of identity among the youth, the importance of family, and mental health awareness were showcased. The last performance of the day was that by Prayas House. They put forward the overwhelming emotions of people who saw school as an escape from their feelings. During the lockdown, more people have been stressing about mental health because the rate of depression and anxiety has gone up drastically due to the pandemic and the pressure put on students.

With that, the performances commenced and following a very heartfelt address by our judges, the results were announced.

"Pitch It!"

"Good design begins with honesty, asks tough questions, comes from collaboration, and from trusting your intuition."

- Freeman Thomas

The Bizzonomy Club aims to help the students at Sanskriti explore the ever-changing and exciting world of business and economics and encourage out of the box, unique thinking, much needed in this evolving paradigm.

This year, the Bizzonomy Club hosted the event titled "Pitch It" for participants of the 11th grade. The participants were divided into three groups with Group 1 drawn from sections 11A/11B/ 11C, Group 2 from sections 11D/11E/11F, and Group 3 from 11G/11H/ 11 I. Each house was represented by 3 participants in each Group.

Team members were asked to create a unique selling proposition for the selected product that had been identified for endorsement. Each team's presentation included a PPT with respect to their product containing all the details which were there in the google form that was filled by them previously. Each team was given 5 minutes to "Pitch-In" their product to the judges, following the advertisements for their product which was shown after their pitch.

The Judges for this event were Sanskriti Schools' renowned alumni. The Bizzonomy club is grateful to the Judges who shared their valuable inputs and feedback with the participants throughout the event.

The Judges for Group 1 were Arsh Singh, (a graduate of Economics and Finance from DU who has donned multiple hats in the technology field) and Sonal G Chadha (currently working as a tax manager in a chartered accountancy firm).

For Group 2, the Judges were Anubhav Mahajan (currently working as a tax manager in a Chartered Accountancy firm) and Harsh Kataria (who has 6 years of experience in the marketing world).

For group 3 we had Taniya Bajaj (currently working as a tax manager in a Chartered Accountancy firm) and Aradhana Rai Gupta (co-leading project Baala, one of India's highest impact menstrual hygiene organizations).

The Judges were expected to assess the participants based on the pitch and the advertisement along with the participant's responses during the "Question-Answer Session".

All three groups endorsed unique, eye catching products that kept everyone engaged till the very end. The event saw solid marketing strategies with clear and concise blueprints and a common vision to bring about innovation in everyday use objects to make lives easier while being environmentally friendly.

The PPT presentations and more particularly the question-answer session that followed after each “Pitch It” made it a lively and engrossing event. Quite clearly the participants demonstrated an acute understanding of market dynamics and product positioning making The Bizzonomy club day a successful event.
